

GEORGE III MAHOGANY SERPENTINE SERVING TABLE - REF 2146

A good George III mahogany serpentine serving table in the manner of Robert Adam. The serpentine fronted top with applied moulded edge over a deep fluted frieze to both front and sides, with beaded lower moulding.

The table is supported by square section tapering fluted legs, with ankle cuffs over a square hoof style foot standing on semi-concealed castors. The fluting on used on the frieze and legs of this table is echoed in designs by Robert Adam.

Robert Adam's name is known as much for his work in interior decoration and furniture design, as it is for his architecture. Adam must be considered along with Thomas Chippendale, George Hepplewhite and Thomas Sheraton in the development of English furniture styles. Though he was not a cabinet-maker, Adam was one of the first to consider furniture fully worthy of an architect's attention.
